

Research

a. Completed

- i. Contribution of Cloth weaving (Aso- Oke) to the generated income of rural dwellers. The study was designed to determine the contribution of cloth weaving to the income of cloth weavers in Iseyin Local Government of Oyo State. The study revealed that the cloth weavers derived benefits from Aso oke production and this contributed to their income.

b. In progress

- i. Consumer preference for cassava bread among community dwellers. This study compared the consumption of cassava bread to wheat bread in terms of texture, colour, and taste. The study revealed that most consumers had low preference for cassava bread consumption than wheat bread.

c. Project, Dissertation and Thesis

- i. Perceived Health Status of Fadama Users on their Productivity in Oyo state. Unpublished M.Sc. dissertation of the Department of Agricultural Extension and Rural Development, University of Ibadan (2010)
- ii. Effects of Development Partnership in Higher Education (DELPHE) on Welfare Status of Rural Women Processors in Oyo and Osun States, Nigeria. Thesis of the Department of Agricultural Extension and Rural Development, University of Ibadan.